SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Lecturer (Research) (Tenure Position)

Salary: Level B:$ 84,927- $100,119 pa (+super)

The School of Engineering and Information Technology (SEIT) currently has a unique position available in the form of tenure track with the tenure period being five(5) years. During this tenure period, the position will be primarily research only and related to a specific ARC Laureate Fellowship research project. If the candidate satisfies the requirements of tenure, as per the UNSW Enterprise Agreement (Academic) 2011, the position may be converted to a permanent Teaching and Research position in the School. If the candidate does not meet the requirements of tenure, the position will terminate at the end of the fixed term period.

The successful applicant will conduct research and publish the outcomes of this research in scholarly journals and other venues. During the tenure period, the research will be in an area related to the Australian Research Council Laureate Fellowship project "Consensus, Estimation and Control in Complex Large-Scale Quantum Systems". After the tenure period, this research can be in any area of research related to the field of Electrical Engineering.

The successful applicant will also develop teaching materials, deliver lectures, tutorial and laboratory classes, supervise undergraduate projects and conduct assessment in the undergraduate and postgraduate coursework programs of the School.
